An Interesting Evening. Through the courtesy of Rev. Dr. Childs, an opportunity was afforded last night to many well-known Washingtonians to witness the lighting of his residence, No. 1308 Connecticut avenue, by the new illumi-nent, acetylene gas. It proved to be a highly interesting and apparently satisfactory test of the much-discussed illumirant. The large parlors were filled by 9 o'clock, and all the lights were turned off except two small one-foot burners in each room, which, supplied by city gas, furnished a light too dim to clearly distin-guish the faces of the guests. Then the acetylene gas was turned on, gradually filling the pipes and taking the place of the city gas as the latter burned out. The city gas as the latter burned out. The transformation was marvelous. In an instant the tiny flame at the burners expanded into a pure white light, almost dazzling in its intensity, and the rooms were brilliantly lighted in every part. Then the acetylene gas was turned off, and the flame settled down to its original proportions, the light of which appeared like glow worms in comparison.

The guests were then taken to the basement and shown the apparatus producing the light. It consisted of a small steel cylinder, containing liqueled acetylene, which the light. It consisted of a small steel cylinder, containing liquefied acetylene, which had been connected with the house gas pipes near the meter. It was stated that this cylinder, which was six inches in diameter and five feet high, contained sufficient gas to light the entire house thirty days. The only other change in the house was the substitution of small, one-foot tips for the ordinary five-foot burners, which are too large for the intense light of acetylene. The apparatus was of the most simple character, and it apparently required only a few moments' work to substitute one gas for the other for ordinary house consumption.

The Burglars Who Raided the Japanese

Four Boys Did the Job and the Plun der Was Secured-Knew

Twenty-four hours after the robbery at the Japanese legation, the thieves were under arrest and all the property recovered. Four boys, whose ages range from sixteen to nineteen years, are the alleged robbers and they were arrested by Detectives Horne of the second precinct. The prisoners are Harry Stewart, sixteen years old; Charles Stewart, eighteen years; William Mullen, seventeen years, and Edward Fields, who is eighteen years old.

Harry Stewart had been employed at the legation for a number of months, and it was during the time he was employed there that the wine cellar was visited by persons who had no business there, and many of the bottles emptied. Other things disappeared, and Stewart was finally discharged from his

Knowing the house as he did, he planned the robbery, and now he and his companions have confessed and told of their experience in the house Sunday night.

When the case was reported to the police, it was almost certain that the persons who committed the robbery were well acquainted with the house. The officers were told of the discharge of Harry Stewart, the messenger, and they concluded to question him.

Harry Stewart lives with his mother at 625 New York avenue, where his brother Charles also resides. He was found by Precinct Detective Barnes about 6 o'clock in the afternoon and he denied any knowledge of the affair. None of the missing jewels were found on him, but he suspected from the detective's manner and conversajewels were found on him, but he suspected from the detective's manner and conversation that he knew about the affair, and so he gave information which led to the capture of the other boys.

It soon appeared that the Stewart boys had thought they would be suspected and so they had turned all the property over to their companions, so that when Charles was arrested later in the day nothing was found on him. But the Fields boy was with him and he had several hundred dollars' worth of the plunder in his pockets. Will-liam Mullen, who lives near 11th and E llam Mullen, who lives near 11th and E streets, was arrested at the Riggs House, where he was employed as elevator boy, and he had the lion's share of the stolen

All four boys were then behind the bars and all the property recovered. Then they admitted that they had committed the theft. They went to the house together and pried open a window to effect an entrance. When they had succeeded in getting possession of the jewelry they de-cended the stairs, and reached the hall-way just as a newspaper reporter had called to interview the minister, and Fields says he slammed the door in the reporter's says he slammed the door in the reporter's face. Then the frightened boys made an effort to get out, and in doing so Fields' foot got caught in the lace curtain, and he tore it in getting loose.

There had been no effort made to dispuse of the property, and the boys told the officers that it was their intention to hide the for a year and then sell it. Tomorray

Policy Case.

Policy Case.

Policeman Gibson of the second precinct had a policy case in the Police Court yesterday, the defendant being David Garnett, a colored man. He was arraigned as a runner, and entered a plea of guilty. Garnett admitted that he had taken plays across the river for friends, and a sentence of sixty days was imposed.

To this community is 8 of great that he had taken play surface of his welcome, independently of the merit of his play, was the star performer at the new theater last night. His play, "Government Acceptance," is a very modern creation and somewhat deficient in the substantial literary quality which has been associated with Mr. Robson's work in the past. The story of the poverty-stricken inventor who is in danger of being robbed of the fruits of his genius is so familiar that it no longer appeals to the sympathies in its old form, and the author of "Government Acceptance," is a very modern creation and somewhat deficient in the substantial literary quality which has been associated with Mr. Robson's work in the past. The story he is sure of his welcome, independently the sympathies in its old form, and the author of "Government Acceptance" has been successful in introducing very few important variations. Mr. Robson's vocal eccentricities, which become him so well in the ordinary line of comedy, scarcely harmonize with the sentiment and pathos which have evidently been intended in this production. It is in the field of legitimate fun that Mr. Robson has been and will continue to be most acceptable. His melancholy flights could not be impressive, and it was entirely to his credit that he deliberately neglected occasions which seemed to call for something softer than a comic mood. Mrs. Waldron Robson played the role of a very attractive woman in a wholly natural manner. There were some commendable performances in the minor roles. The mechanical features of the piece were highly attractive, and the scene showing the illuminated battle ship model commanded several curtain calls.

Grand Opera House.—The Twentieth Century Girl, a light and airy skit, which sweeps within the comprehensive circle of its attractions almost all the lighter methods of the structure of the stru its attractions almost all the lighter methods of theatric diversion, was performed at the Grand Opera House last night. The array of well-known favorites in the world of comedy is a striking one, and the combination of forces offers results which a liberal attendance last night found gratifying. There is variety in the production without an undue preponderance of any of the elements, and it must be, indeed, a jaded or unsusceptible nature which does not in some way respond to the blandishments which the musician, scene painter, costumer and to some degree the wit have combined to exert in this production. Gus Williams, Molly Fuller and John T. Kelly are entertainers too well known to justify a disquisition on their respective accomplisments.

New National.—Hoyt's "Black Sheep" reached town again last night, with a brandnew red ribbon on its neck, in sleek condition and a decided addition to the theatrical flock of '95. The audience was a large one, and this amusing farce was well received. Most of the old favorites were in the cast, with a new face here and there to freshen up the combination a little. Otis Harlan as "Hot Stuff" is just as black a sheep as ever.

The exhibit appeared to be thoroughly satisfactory to all present, and certainly made a most remarkable showing. The scenery was late arriving, and the curtain did not go up on the first act until nearly 9 o'clock. The large audience waited patiently, and were well rewarded. "Sins of a Night" proved to be one of the strongest plays presented in Washington for some time, the dialogue being crisp and inspiring and the action full of dramatic force and enthusiastic heroism. The scenery is picturesque and beautiful and the company is a strong one. Frank Karrington as the hero and Susie Wills as the heroine, of course, were the center of attraction, as the author intended them to be, but it was a close race for honors between them and a close race for honors between them and the other members of the cast. The com-edy work was furnished by John Price and Florence Marion. Again tonight.

PROMPTLY ARRESTED his third week at Odd Fellows' Hall last night to a large audience. His spiritualistic seance Sunday evening was attended by a crowd that filled the hall, and some of by a crowd that filled the hall, and some of his tests completely mystified his audience. Last evening, after his feats in legerdemain, he put on part of the Davenport Brothers' seance, and in various other ways excited the wonder and curlosity of the audience. He went through his usual manifestations in hypnotism and mesmerism. He will show every night this week, and, as his prices have been lowered, large crowds are expected at every performance. Next Sunday evening he will give another spiritualistic seance, at which he will produce some startling and new manifestations.

Convention Hall.—"Black America" is everything that its manager claims for it, and a great deal more besides. When the leader of the band raised his baton last night the immense hall was filled to over-flowing, and late comers were at a loss for seats. The production is not a minstrel show, nor can it be called a simple chorus of singers but it is a realistic production of show, nor can it be called a simple chorus of singers, but it is a realistic production of the enjoyable life which the negroes of the south led before the war. The chorus is composed of about three hundred voices, and the singing which came from the dusky throats was very sweet. The first part of the program was given up to chorus singing and quartets, together with one or two solos by various members of the Black America chorus. Encores were frequent and hearty.

The second part opened with a cake walk, in which sixteen couples took part, led through the intricacies of the walk by the efficient master of ceremonies, Geo. Wilson. The audience was asked to settle upon a favorite, and it awarded the prize to No. 4, a tall young negro in a white suit, accompanied by a smart damsel of dusky hue in a bright green dress. After the cake walk a number of specialities were introduced, the first one being Pablo Diaz, the human corkscrew. A detachment of the ninth United States cavalry, on furlough, then gave a drill with saber movements, which was followed by boxing bouts and acrobatic feats by members of the younger part of the Elack America chorus. One of the most pronounced favorites of the evening was Miss Bessie Lee. She was forced to sing four times. She was accompanied by a quartet, and her voice was heard to the extreme limits of the hall. The program wound up with the rosewood and sheepskin orchestra, in which were introduced buck dancing, singing and instrumental music. The feature of this part was the dancing together of about forty members of the cherus, male and female all keeping perfect time, and performing intricate steps. The lengthy program closed by a salute to the efficient master of ceremonies, Geo. Wilson The audience was asked to settle upon time, and performing intricate steps. The lengthy program closed by a salute to the flag as "America" was being sung by 300 voices. Black America will continue all this week, and even a larger crowd is ex-pected tonight than was present last night.

The Melba Concert Company.—The occasions when the peerless voice of Melba can be heard in this city are not so frequent but that every one of her appearances is a genuine musical event. On Tuesday evening, October 29, this great artist comes to the Grand Opera House, to give a concert of song and of opera, with scenery and costumes, and a complete orchestra. Associated with her will be those justly popular favorites, Scalchi, Bauermeister and Campanari and a new tenor, who has made his mark in opera, and who is to join the Abbey and Grau company later, Sig. D'Aubigne. The conductor of the orchestra is a young English musician from London, Mr. Landon Ronald, to whom high praise has been given. The program will include one part of concert numbers and the third act of "Faust," with Mme. Melba as Margueritte. The sale of seats will commence at the Grand Opera House Thursday morning. Just When Summer is Finally Over

It is easy to say "Look in the almanae." evidence of that respectable volume is not con-clusive, because the seasons glide into each other by slow degrees. the almanac says "summer." Another is hot and enervating. "It is autumn" declares the same authority.

These sudden fluctuations make our American climate so trying to the human constitution. They produce the colds that prostrate the strongest men, and run into pneumonia and even into consumption. All who have pneumonia are not in immediate danger of death. The old are most likely to be taken off, but every attack of this malady weakeas the power of the body to resist disease. the power of the body to resist disease.
Wise men and women take no chances. In the season of sudden and extreme changes of temperature they have found that Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey by diluting the blood vessels near the surface of the body, prevents the chilis and con-gestions which are the forerunners of a severe cold. This Whiskey is made with the utmost care cold. This Whiskey is made with the utmost care by the most approved scientific methods. The most delicate chemical tests fail to show the slightest trace of deleterious matter in it.

A fortifier and a preserver of bodily heat and nervous energy, Duffy's Pure Mait Whiskey is never more desirable than at this uncertain time of the year. All druggists and grocers have it, although some of them may try to persuade customers that something clse is just as good. Do not listen to these men. Tell them you know as well as they do that there is no possible substitute for Duffy's Pure Mait Whiskey.
